Member Institution Benefits, Academic Year 2023-2024

MEMBER INSTITUTIONS OF THE AMERICAN ACADEMY IN ROME

Since 1913, America's leading colleges and universities have been Member Institutions of the American Academy in Rome. Today the group totals over ninety members. Their participation helps to support and maintain the Academy, which, in turn, serves as an important scholarly resource for faculty members and graduate students.

Member Institutions of the American Academy in Rome's Advisory Council are given the exclusive opportunity to participate in the Academy's governance. Member Institutions:

- Elect one member of the Academy's Board of Trustees.
- Appoint up to three faculty members to serve on the Advisory Council on Classical Studies to the Committee on the Humanities, the Trustee Committee that oversees Academy programs and juries in the Humanities
- Elect the AAR jury that annually selects the Rome Prize Winners in Ancient Studies

The Council meets annually in conjunction with the meetings of the Society for Classical Studies and the Archaeological Institute of America.

SUMMER PROGRAMS

Students from Advisory Council Member Institutions may receive priority registration for the AAR's Summer Programs. These programs fill gaps in American university education and expand the reach of the humanities in the United States. Each program is designed to take advantage of the AAR's location in Rome and its unique access to materials, sites, and experiences not typically available to American students.

VISITING SCHOLARS

Faculty from Member Institutions may apply to join the Academy community as Visiting Scholars and are given preferential consideration in the application process. They rent space at the Academy for periods of four to eight weeks. Please see www.aarome.org/apply/visiting-artists-scholars for a description of accommodations, costs and deadlines. Approximately 200 scholars and artists are selected annually.

LIBRARY ACCESS FOR FACULTY

Faculty from Member Institutions enjoy access to the exemplary collections and resources of the Arthur and Janet C. Ross Library, and to continued Library access when the Library closes to outside readers in early-July, until the Academy's closing. Please see www.aarome.org/research/library for more information.
